Farmers + Food + Fiber = FUN!

The Egleston Farmers Market is hosting a Fiber Arts Day, and we don't mean the type of fiber you find in your Raisin Bran! On Saturday

February 28th from 11:00am - 2:00pm JP Knit & Stitch and fiber artist Jenny McCracken will be performing weaving and spinning demonstrations for the public. There will be activities for kids, a fiber art exhibit, and fiber vendors that will be selling all sorts of goodies from balls of yarn to leg warmers, and best of all, the event is free! The winter market will also be open as usual selling all their products and goods. The Egleston Farmers

Market is located at the Urbano Project at 29 Germania Street in Jamaica Plain, in the Brewery Complex near Sam Adams. For more information, follow them on Facebook at www.Facebook.com/Eglestonfarmersmarket. photo credit to Getty Images
